

I am opposed to the FCC's proposal to loosen restrictions on Broadcast media ownership. I believe that it is not in the best interest of the public if a small number of companies owned and controlled media broadcasting in the USA. It is difficult as it stands right now to get a diverse scope of local, national, and international media. I don't think that allowing companies to merge and acquire media broadcasting rights would make broadcast media more diverse and competitive, in fact, I think just the opposite would result. We are supposed to live in a free thinking society, so to relax on the rules that keeps thoughts and ideas flowing from many different perspectives would be a mistake.
